

Thank You

We would like to express our thanks to all of you who have been joining us for our streamed live services from St Albans.

We are new to the experience of broadcasting our services live via our You Tube channel and it has taken a great deal of hard work, research and experimentation to get “up and running”.

It has been particularly difficult trying to maintain a consistent WiFi signal in church and in getting the sound levels to a suitable volume and clarity. At the same time we have not wanted church to resemble a broadcasting studio for those people actually attending the service. It is fair to say that the experience has almost been as frustrating for us as it has been for you tuning in. Hence the thanks to you all for sticking with us. We truly appreciate your patience and perseverance.

We do believe we are now in a position where we think we have solved the problems that have disrupted the streaming and can look forward to a period where the services will be truly accessible to everyone.

If you have tried to join us on our YouTube channel but have given up because the service has been interrupted please give it another try, we are sure you will find it a more satisfying and spiritual experience.

If you have never tried it, just click on the link in Peter’s weekly pastoral letter, about five minutes before the service starts, and it will take you straight to St Alban’s.

Once again many thanks to you all.
